

David J. Smith

David J. Smith is a classroom teacher with over 25 years' experience teaching Middle School English, geography, and Social Studies.

He is author of a unique method of teaching seventh graders to draw maps of the entire world from memory, now published by Peter Reynolds' Fablevision as "Mapping The World By Heart". Smith won the U.S. Department of Education's "A+ For Breaking The Mold" Award for this work.

He is also author of If The World Were A Village, published in 2002 by Kids Can Press in Toronto and now in its 2nd edition, 22nd printing, and published in 26 languages worldwide. His second children's book, If America Were A Village, was published in August, 2009 also by Kids Can Press. His newest book, This Child Every Child, was published in 2011; it is a picture book for children about children's rights, based on the U.N. Convention On the Rights of the Child, and endorsed by UNICEF. Another picture book will be published in 2014 – entitled "IF... Big Ideas and Numbers Made Meaningful".

If The World Were A Village has been favorably reviewed in journals such as Booklist and Horn Book and School Library Journal. It won the H.C.Andersen Prize for 2003, the International Reading Association's Children's Book Award for 2003, and was named a Smithsonian "Notable Book of the Year". It was chosen by the American Booksellers Association as their #1-recommended book on the BookSense 76 Children's list for Spring-Summer, 2002, and Newsweek chose it as one of 10 children's books on their "recommended reading" list in August, 2002.

He is a resident of North Vancouver, BC, with his wife, Suzanne. He spends about 6 months of the year traveling to schools and association meetings all over the world, to talk to students, teachers, administrators, and parents about materials and methods for teaching and learning geography, and world-mindedness.
